You and the Program

The Program is such a delight. Every day for what I do on Facebook, I open up my Maia Mechanics in the morning, take a look and write out a couple of simple little formulas based on what's there. I guess I've been doing that a couple of months now.

The Program Isn't Interested in Us

Aside from the fact that it deeply impacts people, it impacts them in a way that's very surprising. I try to let them know that if this is what's happening to you, you're caught in the Program. I think that one of the things that's so difficult for most human beings to understand is that the environment that we live in, the actual programming environment that we live in, is not interested in us at all. It's not interested in you. After all, this whole concept of this program is about you.

A Biverse without Intent

It goes back to something that is very profound. It goes back to probably one of the most heretical things that I represent. That is, I represent a biverse, a universe that is without intent. In other words, this is a godless thing. This is not something that was created by some incredible force out there, some great cosmic force that said, "And now, let me give you a world and a future, and all of those things. And if anything goes wrong, do pray to me and we'll look after it."

I saw a great t-shirt the other day as I was walking down the street. It said: God is coming; look busy. I thought that was really cute. I have a great t-shirt with the Devil on it and it says: God is busy. Come and talk to me.

The moment that you think that there is a force behind all of this, you don't have to be responsible. The moment that there is some kind of an intent, that this is all going to work out, even if looks really bad, if you're a good person—all of these religions that postulate that the reward that you're going to get, I'm always astonished by the fact that humanity has never figured it out that the reward always comes when you're dead, and nobody complains. It's an amazing thing when you think about it.

If you got a credit card that said you were going to get extra miles when you're dead, you're not going to go for it. Nobody is going to go for that, but everybody goes for that in all these spiritual practices. They all tell you the same thing: You live your life and you're going to get your reward, or you're going to be a better incarnation the next time, and all of this stuff.

So, there is this assumption that the forces of the universe are there for our benefit. And the moment that you think the forces of the universe are there for your benefit, you are able to sit back and say, "Ok, if things go wrong, I know where I can turn to." And what you can turn to is never yourself.

We Are on Our Own

The first curse of the Program is that homogenization says to you "You're not alone. I'm here with you." There are all these new-agey people, and they all say the same thing, that we're all one. We're all one what? "We're all in this together." But we're not all in this together.

That is not what it is about. The fact of the matter is every one of us is here on our own because everything else is just illusion. No matter what you think about the other over there and over there, you're here alone inside. These are vehicles that we travel in. We're a Personality consciousness.

The Personality and Design Crystal Are Dark Matter

The Personality and Design Crystal are made of dark matter. It is one of the most beautiful things to think about. The very thing that is the essence of what you are you cannot see, you cannot touch. There is no way to even grasp what that is, it is so alien. And it is the very thing that you cannot see that is the seer. It has nothing to do with these atomic vehicles. Yet here we are, we ride inside of these individual vehicles.

The whole thing about Human Design is that it says to forget about all the other stuff. Deal with this box. If you can come to grips with what this vehicle is, if you can allow this vehicle to mechanically operate the way it was designed to operate, then you're going to be able to get the experience that you're here for.

The Program Tries to Influence the Form

Because after all, everything about the nature of what it is to be in form is that the form principle has to be honored. And the one thing that gets in the way of the form principle is this Maia plane that we live on in which the Program is constantly trying to influence the way in which the form is going to operate.

We Are Not a Part of the Future

Right now, since 1781, the Program—and it's really initiated by Pluto—is no longer interested in us. We are expendable. And we are expendable for the benefit of what's coming. And not because frankly the Program cares about what's coming, it is just an evolved formula. It is a formula that has evolved over 15 billion years of movement in space. And this formula is pushing us towards a future that has nothing to do with us.

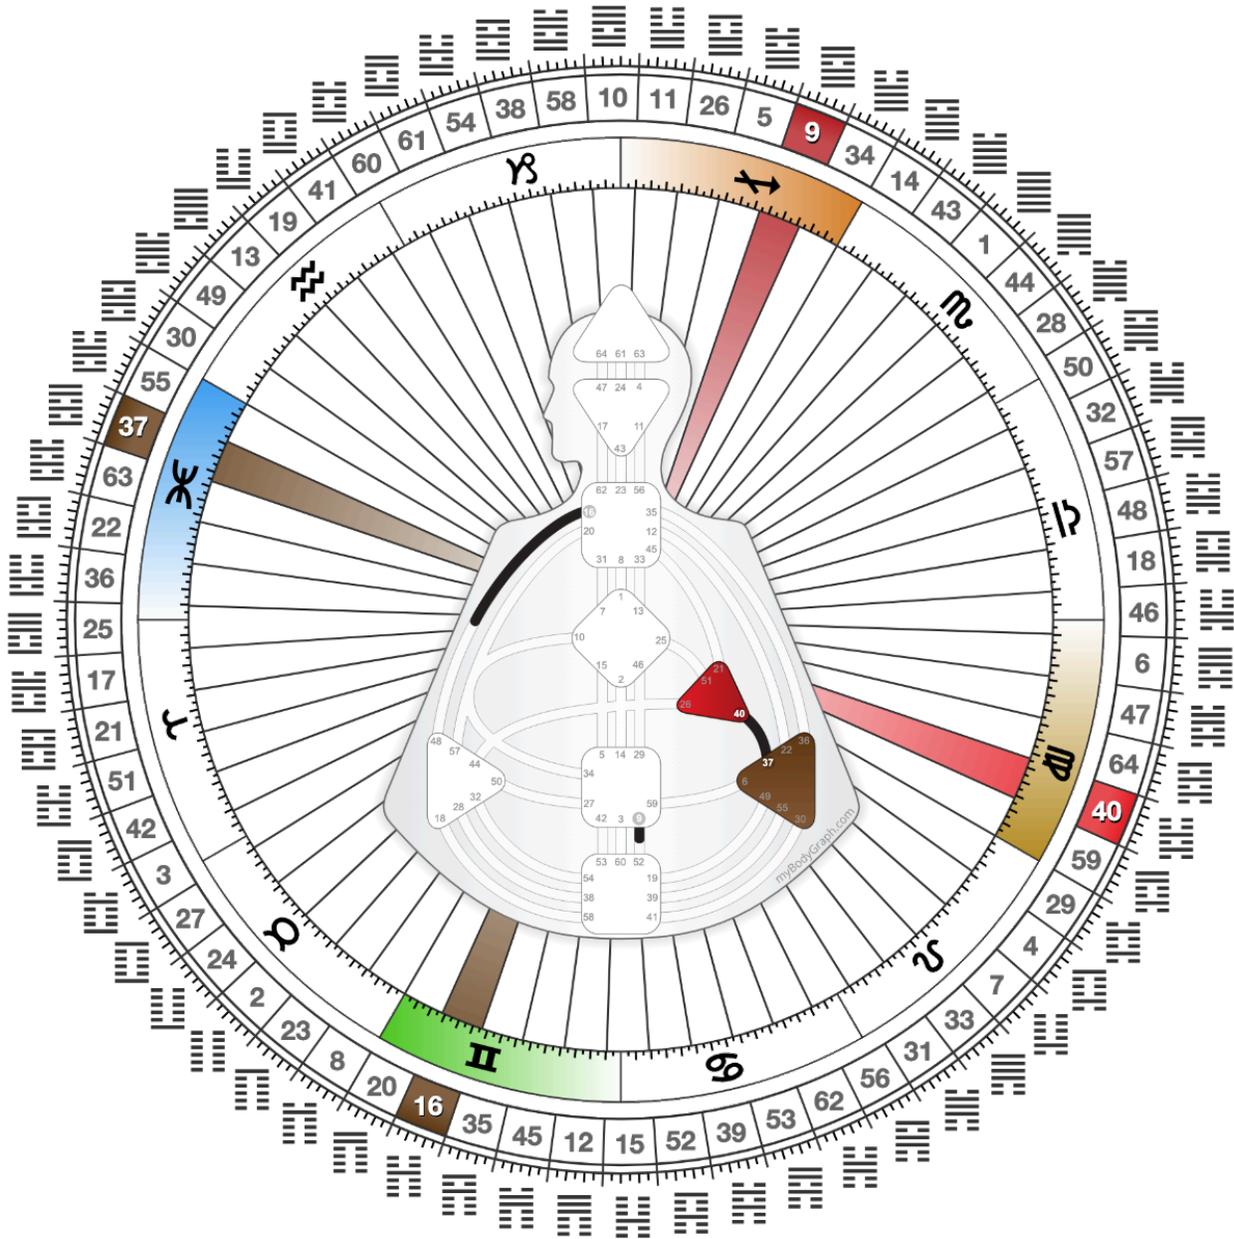

Think about it. The Global Cycles are an amazing thing. In 1615 we entered into the Cross of Planning cycle. So, we have this great background frequency that is there to provide us with a platform for awareness. You've got this great platform for the 40-37, so you have all of this community, the bargain, the bond that made this kind of civilization possible. You have the 16 and the 9, so you have all of this skill and focus on detail, and the rise of secular science. You have all of this incredible stuff beginning in 1615.

The Cross of Planning Cycle Ends in 2027

Now, it's going to end in 2027. It's going to end just like that. Most human beings have no idea what this background frequency is. The assumption is that we as a species, over these hundreds of years, did all of this stuff, that we built our societies, the institutions, the medical institutions, the schools, the governments, all of this stuff. We had nothing to do with it.

Think about the 40-37. The 40-37 is something that's really cool because everything about the way in which our society operates is based on it. It's based on a Tribal deal. The Tribal deal is that we work together: You do this, and I do that. You wash the dishes; I take out the garbage. You build the building; I'll fill it up. You build the city, and we'll police it. All of these basic Tribal bargains go on and on in order to be able to provide for those offspring that are coming.

The Bargains of the Background Frequency

It's interesting to note that the moment we entered into the Cross of Planning we had the largest population explosion in our history, which will crash the moment that the Cross of Planning is over, because the Cross of Planning is the only thing that will provide for the 59-6, the making of more and more. If you're going to make more, you need houses, schools, teachers. You need to be able to provide. You need all of that to be organized. All of that comes from the 40-37. It's a background frequency.

So, all of us, in that background frequency, our civilization, the way in which it has been developed has been on this bargain. Think about this city [Toronto]. There are about five million people that live here. So that means every morning, there are five million people that need to have certain basic things. They need to have their breakfast. They need to be able to get to a job that exists, in an environment that is maintained, and on and on. All of that is done through bargains.

Bargains that Maintain Our Well-Being

Those bargains are the bargains that maintain our well-being. That there are farmers somewhere who have truckers who are able to bring that into city, bring it to those places where it is distributed and put into the various stores, shops, the restaurants that you can get it to your table.

I live in one of these huge condominiums. Just to maintain a building like that, to be able to maintain the lives of all those people in there, we take that for granted. We take it for granted that the bargain is an eternal bargain. We forget that before the time of the Cross of Planning, none of this could exist.

There were certain barter mechanisms, but basically everybody dealt within their little Tribal grouping. And it was within that Tribal grouping that they looked after the things they needed to look after, but they couldn't get all the other stuff that goes with it, the accoutrement of a modern society and all of the things that are available here. All of this is maintained through that bargain.

The Cross of Planning Brings the Bargains

Again, the assumption is that it's our bargain. The assumption is that you put five million people together in one location and they're actually going to get along and not kill each other, because they don't have to compete in the same way that we once competed before we had a social bargain.

That social bargain has led to all of these philosophies, these philosophies about the responsibility of those who govern to those that are governed, the responsibility that you have to the citizens of your society, the responsibility we have in a wealthy environment to look after those that are poor and disenfranchised.

All of the NGO's and all of these institutions that exist today to look after those that don't have, those that are disenfranchised, those that suffer from the diseases that can be cured by 20 cents a day and all of this stuff that you see, all of this is Cross of Planning.

The fact that we have all these humanitarian organizations has nothing to do with us. We are savage creatures. It is very easy to strip away that veneer. Think about what happens the moment that the trucks don't deliver the groceries to the city. Just think about what happens to any city in that situation. It is worse than any kind of science fiction horror movie that you can imagine.

It's like people who go into their local grocery store, go to the butcher and they get what they need. It's very convenient. It's part of the bargain. There's a bargain that somebody is going to work in a slaughterhouse. There is a bargain that they're going to do the dirty work for you. There is a bargain that those people that are going to raise the animals to provide the slaughterhouse to provide all of that so that you can have that on your table.

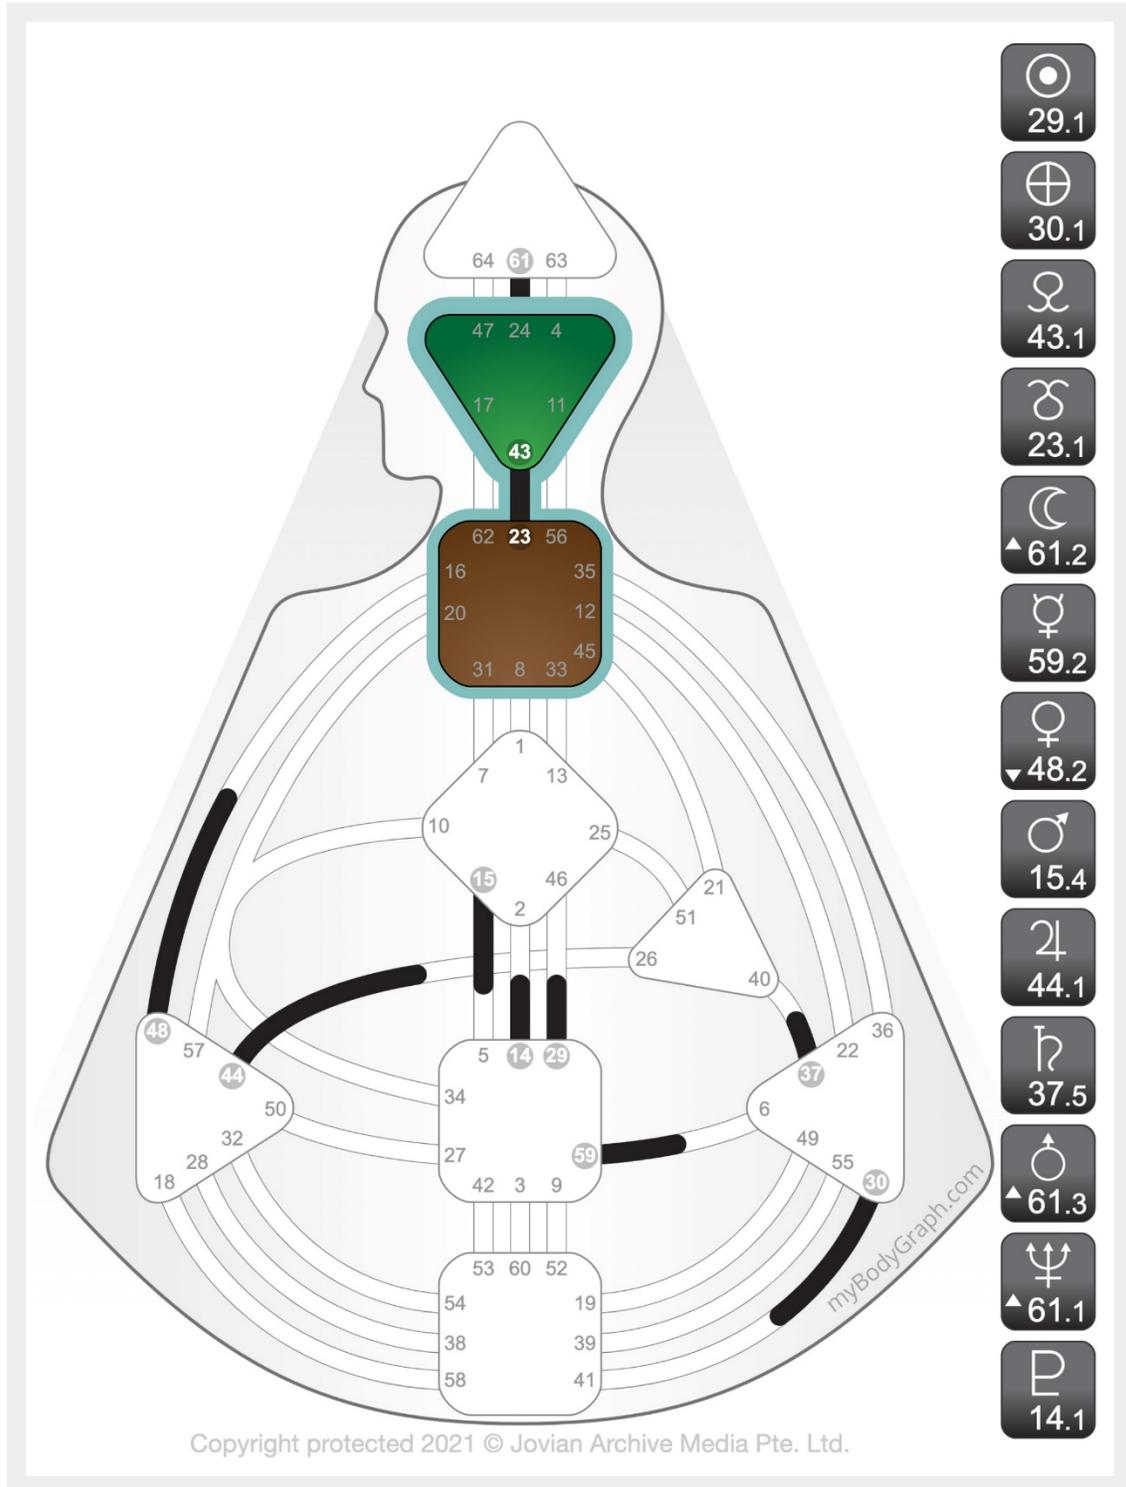

This is all Cross of Planning. When you take away the Cross of Planning, the guy that has the cow isn't going to give you the cow; they're going to keep the cow. It is the way it is. This is going to come to an end.

Ra's Experience During the Changing of a Nodal Transit

One of the very first trainings I did in Ibiza, I think it was in 1992, there was a nodal transit at the time, a 23-43 nodal transit. The 43-23, the Ajna to the Throat, is where everybody says, "I know, I know." It's a nodal transit that lasts for months. It so happened that during that training, the transit was going to end.

I had three students. I took them into the local café in the village where I was working on the island. It was a café that is always filled with people. It was lunchtime and the transit ended at something like 12:30. We go in there at 11:45 and sit down. There was the typical hubbub—all this talking and stuff going on. None of these people know they're under the influence of the Program. None of them are going "I know, I know, I know" because it's the Program. They're just doing their thing. They're totally unaware.

So, we sit there waiting. The transit ends and there is this incredible moment. Maybe it lasted 30 seconds where there was absolute silence. Suddenly there is just this whoosh and the whole café just went suddenly silent. Slowly it came back; but not the same as it was before. It's simply gone, nobody knew what was going on. My students sat there with their mouths open; they couldn't believe it, because this is what a background frequency is.

We Are Always Influenced by the Program

The Program is influencing us all the time. I can feel today the 64-47 pressure. We've got a transit right now; we have the Head Center and the Ajna defined. I don't like this 64-47; I've never liked it. And I can feel this pressure on my head. It's right here, I can feel it, and I know what it is, and I know it's the Program.

But think about the people who don't know that. Think about how many aspirins are being swallowed today. And there is nothing wrong with these people. It's not like they need acetylsalicylic acid today. How many products are sold every single day because it's simply the Program that they're taking in and they're totally unaware of what it is.

Now, background frequency—when we get to February of 2027 and the Cross of Planning background frequency disappears, this is going to be an enormous event. If you go back and you look at history, it's filled with these remarkable transitions that historians never understand. One moment you have a flourishing civilization, and the next moment, in historical terms, a hundred years, it's gone. They don't know why. They have all of these theories. "Well, it was a disease. They all moved," all this kind of stuff.

Science Is for the Benefit of the Community

But it's a background frequency. Here we are on this planet under this frequency that literally says that we're all brothers and sisters, we're all in this together, we have to care about each other. Think about science. The combination of the 16 and the 9 with the 40-37 means that everything in science had to be for the benefit of the community. So, with all of these developments scientifically, the question is always the same.

When they want to send somebody into space, the first question is: Is it any good for us? Is it going to do something for us? Are we going to benefit from it? This is just the Cross. It's not us.

The Channel of Community

The moment that you understand trans-auric forms, like the Wa, you get to see that if you take away the Cross of Planning, the lowest common denominator in humanity is going to emerge, and it's not nice. The nice thing about the 40-37 is that it really is the Channel of Community. And it is a Channel of Community that carries with it affection and all of these things. It carries with it a deep concern for the other. The 40th Gate is not just simply the love of work, but it's the love of work for the other.

So, you have all these people who work their whole lives for their families, for the environment, for the human community to save the planet, to save the trees, the dolphins, to save whatever they're going to do. All of this is just background frequency. It's not us; it has nothing to do with us. It's just the way in which we are conditioned as a homogenized being, as a species that is homogenized.

The Global Cycle Lasts Hundreds of Years

It's what the Program does. The Program is busy homogenizing. It can't do anything else. And the deepest homogenization is the Global Cycle background frequency because it lasts for hundreds of years. We're talking about a frequency that lasts over 400 years and you get used to it. Our parents, grandparents, great grandparents, our great-great grandparents, going back and back, have all been living under this background frequency.

Source: From the teachings of the Global Consciousness Program by Ra Uru Hu, recorded and transcribed by Mary Ann Winiger (Key-To-You.com), published at Jovian Archive (JovianArchive.com)

Our philosophies, all of these things have been rooted in this background frequency. The universities, the training schools, all of these things are all a background frequency. And in 2027 it's going to go away.

The Background Frequency Is Collapsing

Let's put that in context. If you're not here for yourself, you're never going to be useful for anybody else. That's the first thing to really grasp. The Program isn't going to help you. All the Program is doing is just driving you along in a homogenized pattern, and a homogenized pattern rooted in whatever the background frequency is.

And you can see it all collapsing now. The whole Cross of Planning thing is falling apart now, because in historical terms, we're very close to that. We're talking about something that is 17 or 18 years away, a nodal cycle, and that's nothing. It's the last gasp of what this whole thing is all about. And it means that our ability to be able to maintain what are these institutions that we've established, things like the United Nations, will fall apart.

The United Nations can't survive this. When I says the United Nations, I don't really mean the political United Nations, but the things like UNRWA and UNICEF that help refugees look after children, all of these kinds of institutions that were established at a global level, the ultimate expression of this era. They're all falling apart and are under financed.

Neptune and the Economic System

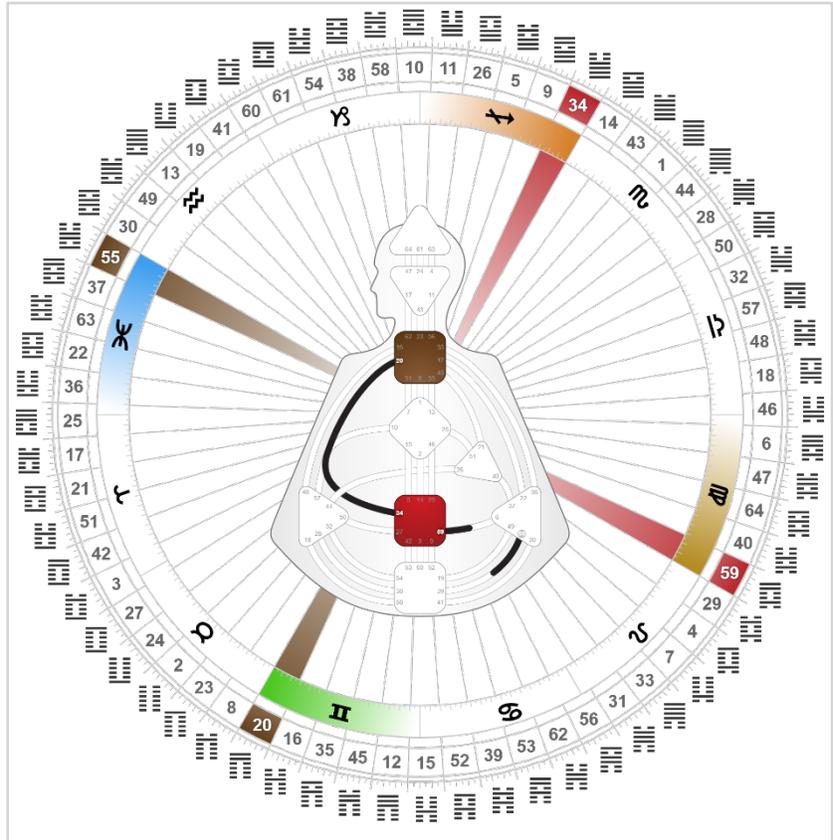

You can see now with the impact of Neptune. Every day I look at Neptune and think whoa, bow down and respect this one. Neptune is ripping our economic system apart. The whole crash that we had, this super recession that we had, began with Neptune going in the 49th Gate. Now, Neptune is in the 30, but it's retrograde, so next month Neptune is going back into the 49th Gate to finish its business. And it will be there for another three or four months.

All the prognostications about everything are going to pick up, that this recession is coming to an end, that we're beginning to see trends, you wait and see what happens when Neptune goes back. And you're going to get the same reaction because the political establishment globally doesn't know what to do.

I watch every day—because the of nature of my business, I've lived in Europe on the Euro and I've earned money in dollars, which is a real bitch, by the way—and I watch the Americans now in what they're trying to do, which is a very old-fashioned way of trying to survive the recession, that you pump money into the economy, but there is no money to pump into the economy.

Americans don't have any money; the Chinese have it. The only money that the Americans have is the money that they roll off the printing presses. And every day they're printing money. The more money they print, the lower the value of the US dollar. There is no way out of that.

The fact is that this recession that we're in is going to go deeper before it goes anywhere. Neptune is going to come back; it's not in our hands. This is the whole thing about the concept that we're all in this together. But we're not. We're only in it together if we surrender to being homogenized because the homogenized world is in trouble. This cycle of ours that have given us all these possibilities and all of this privilege is coming to an end.

The Bargain Has Been Providing for Us

Everything about the nature of this cycle has been built on the fact that things have been provided for you. The bargain has been providing for you. If you have an accident, you have a hospital to go to. If you're born into one of these societies where you're relatively privileged you've got an education that is provided to you.

You have a working environment that allows you to relatively easily find a way to make a living in this society. All of that has been provided by this background frequency and the background frequency is falling apart.

The Cross of the Sleeping Phoenix

So, not only do you have the shifting of the Cross of Planning that is slowly moving away, but what we're moving into is the Cross of the Sleeping Phoenix. This is incredibly individual, individual to a point that it's so terribly different than what we have now. Built into our world now is this constant concern for the other.

I'm a Canadian. There is a part of me that's very proud of this country. Socially, it is a country that has done very well in protecting its citizens. It goes over backwards to protect its citizens. It looks after the poor and the handicapped. It does all of those things that seem to be correct. It has an open-door policy to every race and creed. It's all lovely.

But this background frequency. The thing that makes North America so interesting—Canada and the United States—both of them are an extraordinary experiment that is totally connected to the Cross of Planning. This way of creating a super community in which all of these institutions provide for the advancement of any being, the American Dream: You, too, can become Obama. You can grow up to be the President of the United States, or be Hillary, or whatever.

The Pluto Interregnum

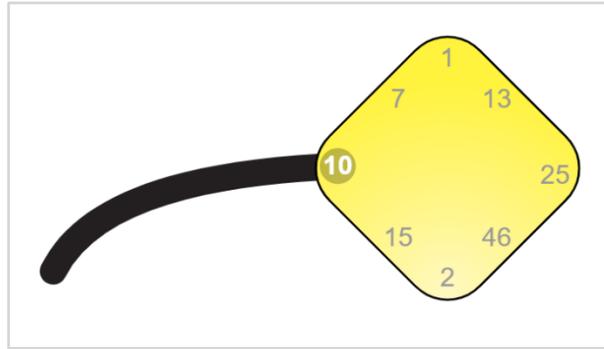

This is what the Cross of Planning has provided, and it's going away. It's disappearing. And on top of that, what we have is the work of Pluto. One of the things I'm so fascinated with is the way in which the interregnum, the Pluto interregnum—Pluto was in the 41st Gate in 1781 when we began the nine centered being's process. Pluto is going to be in the 41st Gate in 2027, so we have a full Pluto cycle.

The 41st Gate is the initiating codon; it starts everything. So, Pluto is bringing us the Alpha and the Omega during this particular phase. Every Gate that Pluto is moving through is a Gate that is being transformed. That is, death and resurrection. That is, the death of one thing, the beginning of something else.

The 10th Gate

What you're seeing now, for example, is that Pluto has been in the 10.4. It has now retrograded back to the 10.3. When you're dealing with the 10th Gate, you're dealing with all the archetypes of role. As a matter of fact, we use the very names of the 10th Gate to describe Profile; other than the 10.1.

The 10.2 is the Hermit, the 10.3 is the Martyr, the 10.4 is the Opportunist, and the 10.5 is Heretic and the 10.6 is the Role Model. Modesty is the 10.1; it's slightly different in terms of the way in which we use it in Profile. But basically, every single one of the Profiles are rooted in the 10th Gate, which is the Behavior of the Self, connected to Integration. In other words, connected to the basic survival mechanism.

Now think about the 10.4. Pluto has been there for months. The 10.4 is all about the potential of opportunity, the Opportunist. The opportunity is rooted in who you know, in your relationships. Opportunity is something that is very much a part of the way in which the Cross of Planning has provided for and benefited everyone, that every being on this planet has had this possibility of being able, through opportunity, to make a difference in their particular life.

No more. Pluto in the 10.4 is over. It is no longer an opportunistic environment for us. And it's no longer an environment where you can wait for somebody else to help you, which is what the Opportunist is all about, cultivating a network that ultimately is where who you know makes a difference for you in this life.

The Next Cycle Is About Individuality

That's not the way it's going to be when we get into the next cycle. In the next cycle, it's going to be like Darwinism—dog-eat-dog—because everything about the cycle that is coming is about individuality.

When Human Design came into the world it didn't come into the world for the Cross of Planning. It was obvious to me from the moment I started my work that it came into the world in order to prepare for the future. You can only prepare for the future if you can create at least a generation of beings who can teach and raise their children correctly so that they can live in that future.

That's what we're moving towards. We're moving towards a future where you cannot wait for somebody else to help you. You cannot wait for a government to look after you. You cannot wait for God to answer your prayers. It isn't going to work.

Giving Up Your Authority

Everything about this knowledge when it came into the world was that this knowledge was here to be able to establish an individual their unique Authority. This is what Human Design is all about. When you think about human lives—I go back to my Facebook experience—all of these people have external Authorities, and they accept any kind of external Authority.

One of the silly things that you see is the kinds of things on Facebook where people are into what kind of fish they are, or what kind of vampire they are, or what kind of god they are, or what kind of planet they come from. It's amazing.

I understand at one level. Curiosity killed the cat. I understand on one level things are interesting. Human beings with open Head Centers find all kinds of stuff interesting. But people take that stuff at one level or another and they attach it to themselves and they allow that Authority to become an Authority for them.

"I'm a barracuda," you know, whatever it is. What kind of American Indian animal are you? What's your animal, what's your this or that? it goes on and on. It's amazing what kind of stuff they put out there, and people just go for it.

Again, I understand entertainment, but it's not. Because what they're doing is giving that Authority to somebody else to tell them what they are, even if it's something ridiculous. It doesn't make a difference. They somehow know. And with glee they post it and say, "Hey, I'm a whale." Well good for you, you're a whale. What the hell does that mean and what good is it for you?

Human beings are always giving up their Authority. The thing that has provided for all of that is the background frequency. The background frequency says, "Yes, give up your Authority. Give up your Authority to the community, to God, to government, let them all tell you what to do." Of course, that's what human beings are like.

Most human beings cannot by themselves deal with the situation. It's terrifying to them. They need to turn to something. They turn to a friend, a lover, a doctor, lawyer, whatever it is, they're turning to somebody to give them the Authority that they don't have themselves. It's the great tragedy of life on this plane.

You cannot become aware if you're willing to accept the Authority of some computer program to tell you that you're a barracuda. It's really insane. It's almost as insane as expecting Jesus to help you.

I had this Jesus freak preacher—I have hilarious connections—who became one of my friends. I have no idea who these people are until I check them out. So, I checked this guy out and I see he's doing this whole thing. I caught one of his things on the newsfeed, that the Devil had given him a hard day and he was praying to God, and all that stuff, praying to Jesus to help him out.

So, I wrote him and said there is no God and Jesus isn't going to help you. I think you should disconnect from my page. The distress in this poor being that this is the only thing he can turn to. What is that going to do for you? It's just going to make things worse.

Not only that, if something nice happens to you, you don't even take that as something that's yours. Jesus did it. Jesus gave me a great morning. I had a good shit this morning, thank you Jesus. Wow! And it's even worse when you go into more primitive parts of the world because Allah—I tell you bow down. It's unbelievable.

Everybody Is Caught in the Vast Homogenization

So, nobody has any Authority anymore. Nobody is a being. Everybody is caught in this vast homogenization. And this is all they're looking for. You look at people in the New Age, they're all looking for the same thing. They're looking for somebody else to tell them what to do, when to do it, how to do it, where to do it, who to do it with, it goes on and on. These are people that cannot even have a relationship of any kind without checking it out with somebody else.

This is background frequency. This is the Program at work. And it has been deeply, deeply inculcated in us over all these hundreds of years that there are these other Authorities that are going to look after you.

I understand the Tribe, within the context of Design. But when you've got a background frequency that is rooted in the 40-37, you know that everybody is being controlled, because that's what the Tribe does. That's what female circumcision is all about—nice thing. This is the Tribe at work and controlling.

Nobody has any Authority. You still have people being stoned to death. This world that we live in, how the Authority is just given over to others and how easy it is to bow down to that Authority. And all of us deal with it. Every day there is some force that is standing there that is saying to you, "You listen to me because I'm in control." And of course, it destroys the spirit.

When I look out at the New Age, I don't see any opportunities for awareness. It's more likely that I can wake up a plumber than somebody who is deeply in the New Age because they have so given up Authority.

I read one this morning that was really hilarious. It said the only way is to surrender to cosmic consciousness. What does that mean? What is that going to do for you today? It's just giving up. The whole comment was "I don't want to be here with my fears and anxiety and the dilemmas of the world. And if I surrender to cosmic consciousness, I'm free." Yeah, right.

Love Yourself

This is what human beings do every day. This is what their lives are on built on. Their lives are built on giving Authority to something else other than themselves. I try to teach people that the essence is to love yourself. Most people confuse that with narcissism because it's not narcissism.

Loving yourself is trusting in yourself. It's trusting in your capacity to be your own Authority. And to be your own Authority is something that's so special because when you see the nature of the world, you see right away it doesn't exist.

Everybody Succumbs to the Program

The thing that's so incredible is that the real Authority that everybody succumbs to every single day is the Program. The Program says, "jump," and everybody jumps. With the 64-47, yesterday I wrote: It's headache weather.

Everybody has a headache. The Program says you're going to have a headache. Okay, I'm going to have a headache. The Program says to be crazy today; you'll be crazy today.

And nobody has a way of navigating out of that because they don't know any better. The whole thing about this knowledge is what Strategy and Authority does is that it gives you your own Authority. That's what it does. It gives your own Authority in the face of all those other things because life is about decision making.

Decisions Made with Your Mind

If you make a decision with your mind, you're in the I've-given-up-my-Authority business. The mind is connected to your openness. The mind is connected to conditioning. So, every time your mind makes a decision, you've given your Authority over to somebody else.

When I was not-self, I was always giving my Authority to somebody else's emotional system. It's just the way that it worked. That became the Authority in my life. It had nothing to do with me. And the decisions I made as the over-emotionalized conditioned Manifestor, whoa, it was ugly and not nice.

What the Program is doing to humanity every single day is that it's just giving them that Authority that rules their lives. And they have no place to turn because the only place that they will turn to when things aren't working for them is to some other Authority, anything other than themselves.

Humans Dislike Themselves

When I first started my professional career, I did readings, thousands of them. It was so depressing. You sit down beside a human being and you realize right away they can't stand themselves. They don't like who they are. And it started when they were very young. It started with the Authority forces that were there in their life, the mother and father that would point out to them that they weren't good enough, fast enough, attractive enough, clever enough, on and on.

Every morning those beings would go into the bathroom and would look in the mirror. What they saw was not what they wanted to be, the fantasy that they could be something else, that they had to be something else other than that thing that was there. Everywhere they looked they measured themselves against the standard that they were supposed to be.

And I would sit down besides these people and they were crippled inside. I couldn't say to them to love themselves. First of all, they had no idea who that self was. The only thing they ever had contact with was their not-self, and the not-self is a mess. But it was something that was enriched by the negativity of the environment that they lived in, that they were constantly being pointed to in terms of "you're not good enough."

It's the way most human beings have been raised. It's the way most human beings feel about themselves, that they don't feel that they are good enough. And when you consider that two-thirds of humanity have an undefined Heart Center, those beings are easily depressed at what their perceived value is in society, that they don't see themselves as being worthy, that are caught in this horrible game of constantly trying to prove that they are good, decent people, whatever the case may be.

You can see how easy it is for these human beings to look for somebody else to be their Authority. The most tragic question is the one in which you're with somebody and you say to them, "Why do you like me? Why do you love me? Why do you care about me?" That's insanity. These are beings who have no sense of who they are; none whatsoever.

Basically, what they're saying is "I don't like myself, love myself or care about myself. How come you do? What is it that you see in me?" because they don't see it themselves. They don't know how to see it in themselves. And the Program doesn't help them. It's not like the Program is going to bring that to them. It's just another Authority that's imposed on them that gives them a sense of totally helplessness.

Most Humans Feel Helpless

Most human beings feel totally helpless in their lives, and not in any exalted way. They simply feel like everything is out of control. So, they spend all their time trying to control their lives, trying to pretend they're something that they're not, trying to pretend that they're living lives that they care about, and they don't.

One-third of all adult Americans are now on happy pills. This is a depressed society. These are human beings that just have nothing left. It's no wonder you get this revival of all of this fundamentalism in the world. The cycle is coming to an end and nobody has the power within themselves. Everything becomes reaching out to somebody else. Yeah, right, God is going to help you.

Every single day the Program takes human beings closer and closer to the edge. It's like watching lemmings. They're just slowly being driven over the edge. I'm astonished when I talk about the lack of originality in the world. Everything about the nine centered being is the beauty of uniqueness. Each and every one of us has the capacity to be able to express true Outer Authority, something that has never been expressed, a perception of the Maia through our particular uniqueness.

The Lack of Originality

The most common thing on Facebook is Bartlett's Quotations. Bartlett's Quotations is a book of quotations, because on Facebook what you get is instead of being able to make an original statement, people will quote Rumi, for example. There are a ton of people who quote Rumi. Rumi was a jerk. If you read Rumi's letters to his son—forget the poetry, yeah, he was a good poet, that's ok. There's nothing wrong with being a good poet. But as a spiritual force, read his letters to his son. He was a real jerk.

His son liked to mess around. He liked to drink and play with the girls. He had a good time. You should read this father's letters. Forget about the exalted sophisticated Rumi, this spiritual one. You read these letters and you see what kind of man he was. People don't care about that stuff. They don't know. They just know that name and think it's something important, so they quote Rumi.

John Barlow

They quote Einstein all the time. Einstein has a career as a philosopher now. But there is nothing original. Nobody is saying anything original. They pick up a quote—I had a friend of mine, a guy I knew many years ago, John Barlow. He was well-known hippy freak from San Francisco. He was a friend of a friend of mine—Terence McKenna—and I met John years ago in Linz, Austria. I was at this thing with Terence and John and Tim Leary.

When I first went on Facebook, he contacted me. We hadn't seen each other in over 20 years or something. He requested to be a friend. And he's got thousands of people as friends. He's quite a popular character.

So, I take a look at the stuff that's he's doing. All he's doing is quoting people. That's all he's doing. They're sort of like tweets. He's got his favorite quotes that he quotes, then people think that's really profound. "Oh, I love this. Oh, I love that." But there is nothing original.

It's so depressing. When I look out at the world of thought, there are about five or six strains and it's all based on stuff that's been around forever, and there is nothing original. You look at this within the Facebook context and you see it come alive. All people do is quote other people. They're quoting me now. It's a joke. It's the same thing; they have nothing original to say, so they grab somebody else. Okay, this is what they do.

This is not what we're here for. We're not here to parrot the same stuff over and over again. It's interesting what somebody can say. But it's interesting what all of us has to contribute. This is much more important than repeating the same things over and over again, ad nauseum. I'm so tired of Rumi quotes.

Yeah, okay, the guy wrote some poetry. To turn him into some kind of exalted figure is a joke. These people have no idea who this guy was. It's like quoting Einstein. Why don't you quote yourself? Do you not have anything to say? It's so rare to see anything original.

Giving Up Intellectual Authority

This is simply about giving up your Authority. You're giving up your intellectual Authority. There is no originality out there. And there is no originality because nobody thinks they're worthy of it. The only thing they think they're worthy of is to show how clever they are by quoting somebody else.

A nice quote is okay. I like a good quote, too. But to spend your time doing nothing but providing quotes from people, who are you? This is just another symptom of what it means by human beings constantly giving up their Authority. When you give up your intellectual Authority, what is important to you is not what you think, but what somebody else thinks. Now, who are you? You're lost.

Human Design Is about the Liberation of Unique Spirit

It all goes back to the same things. Human Design is about the liberation of the unique spirit. This is what we're about. I know that every single human being is capable of being a light. And I don't mean that in a spiritual sense. I mean that simply in the sense that uniqueness is not measurable. If everybody buries their uniqueness in homogenization, we don't get the diversity in the consciousness field that we deserve.

Not only that, but we also don't have interesting conversations because the people you're talking to long ago gave up their unique intellectual Authority to something that they've learned, a repetition of an expression that belonged to somebody else. It's not theirs. Learning is part of our process. But in that process, you need to differentiate.

I remember when I first started to train people in analysis and Design. It's a good thing I don't do that anymore. As I was training these people to be analysts, they were all trying to be like me. Well, you can't be like me. You don't have my Design; you don't have my way of doing things. You don't have my way of seeing. Whoever you are, you take the basic tools and then you express it through you. This is what it's about.

One of my joys in the work that I do is that I have students of mine who take the knowledge and then something extraordinary happens. Something unique comes out—they. It becomes a platform for their unique expression, their unique Authority. It's not about the same stuff rehashed over and over again. It can't be.

Incarnating Manifestors Is Increasing

Right now, until around 2030, we have an increase in the number of Manifestors incarnating. That is extraordinary. It's going to go up to nearly 17% from its normal 8%. So, there is a lot of Manifestors coming into the world.

If you look at that from the point of view of the next cycle that we're going into, because of the individuality of the cycle, the Phoenix, my point of Human Design being here for the next age is that being able to operate on your own Authority means you can survive, no matter what the world is.

The Need to Operate Correctly as Yourself

One of my standard comments is I'm not concerned for my children in the future. It's going to be their world and they're going to be equipped for it. As long as you're equipped for the world that you're in, it doesn't make a difference what is going to go on.

This is one of the beautiful things about having your own Authority. That is, the age that we're going into is an age that is not going to be an age where you're going to be protected by the other. So, you to have to be able to operate yourself and how to operate correctly as yourself.

So, it's going to make a huge difference. Those beings who are going to be able to operate out of Strategy and Authority are going to be able to navigate on that plane. We're not, though, really going to see the transition right away.

The Transition Takes Time

Something I love and been addicted to all my life is history. I love history. I was never provincial. I was always interested in global history, so I have a background in being able to see global trends over time. The beautiful thing about Human Design is it allows you to integrate, being able to be part of an evolutionary process now so that you can actually see what happens and you can see things moving.

But in terms of timeframe, for example, let's take the advent of the nine centered being. Everybody thinks about that date, 1781. But in 1780 seven centered beings were still being born, and they were going live, let's say, a maximum of 100 years. So, it meant that right until the 1880s you still had seven centered beings in the world. They were still there. So, it's only since the end of the 19th century that we've actually had world that's been dominated entirely by us, by the nine centered being.

The same thing is true with moving forward into the next cycle. Those children that are going to be born in 2026, those children that are going to be born in January of 2027, are still going to be part of the Cross of Planning age, and they're going to carry that frequency with them throughout their life.

The real transition is the tipping point. In other words, as those beings who are carrying the Cross of Planning frequency begin to die out, and as the ones being born after 2027 begin to be the dominate force in the population, that's when you're really going to see the transition in society.

The Global Web Will be Gone by 2080

For example, the internet. By the time we get to, let's say 2080, there will no longer be a global web. It will disappear. There will be pockets of it in places. But as a global thing, the way we understand it today, all of that will be gone.

But it's going to take until we get to that point for these institutions that have been supported by the basic bargain to break down. The Web is, for me, the ultimate expression of the Cross of Planning cycle. It is its perfect expression. It is something that is absolutely free and for the benefit of all humanity. And for the benefit of all of humanity, all knowledge is stored on it. When you think about it, it is an incredible thing, how fantastic this thing is.

But this is its moment in the sun. I love it; I have my iPhone and what you can do today. I'm sitting in a taxi coming down here this morning, and I got an incredible app—these apps are unbelievable—there are 100,000 or 200,000 of them now for iPhones. It's unbelievable.

By the way, in September, MMAI is going to be on the iPhone, for any Microsoft PDA. We're working on the program. It's actually going to do something really interesting. There is going to be a free version that we give away to everybody, because we want people to use it. So, with the free version you're going to be able to do a chart, and you're going to be able to pull up the chart of the day. If you're in wi-fi zone, you can pick up certain audios; for example, the daily neutrino forecast, or something like that.

But within the six months following we're going to have some paid applications where basically you'll be able to tie into our server and be able to have anything you do on your phone automatically transferred to your computer or be able to access your stuff from your computer onto your phone if you need it, and all kinds of goodies.

So, I'm in the cab this morning and I have my iPhone, and I'm a news junkie. I have an app that is for newspapers around the world. I have 4,000 newspapers that I can read. I read in French, German, Spanish and English, so I have a nice selection of newspapers I can read.

So, sitting in the cab, here I am going along with this little thing in my hand and I'm pulling the day's newspapers from around the world. I checked out the latest news from Spain. It's fantastic. It's the perfection of the Cross of Planning. All of this being done for all of us, all these people developing all these programs, to be of service to humanity and all of this stuff. It's all perfect Cross of Planning stuff.

Institutionalized Science Is Coming to an End

The science of it—science in the last 400 years, which is what science has been about, since Newton, when you think about it—has been incredibly institutionalized. There are huge science factories where you've got thousands and thousands of people that are employed to simply investigate, to look at things, to develop things. All of these research things are all Cross of Planning and it's coming to an end.

Since 1960, when we entered into the 1st Line phase—remember when we're talking about a larger cycle, it's retrograde. So, when the Cross of Planning began in 1615 it began in the 6th Line. In 1960 we entered into the 1st Line, so we're at a point now where the foundation is possible. I call it the Eden Return. This is the last change.

As a matter of fact, in terms of the Keys, the 61.1 is just sitting there. This is our chance to get the truth. And the chance to get the truth is going to end when we get to 2027. This is what makes this time for us so incredible.

If you look at the scientific world around us, if you look at the kind of knowledge that we are getting to, this is the most incredible era in the history of our intellectuality, and all of it being of service to all of us.

The Cross of Planning Ended the Age of Black Magic

It's like Hubble. I love Hubble. What an incredible thing, to put this eye up there in space for all of us. You can Google it, you can look at the universe, you can look at all these wonderful things. And it's not some obscure being somewhere who has it all to themselves. The Cross of Planning ended the age of black magic. It's the most interesting thing.

From the moment we had the Cross of Planning was the moment we began to kill witches. It's true. It's the moment that we started to get rid of all the darkness. Some of it turned out rather ugly. But to understand it in that sense, it was like now is the time, this is all for everyone, and it's coming to an end.

And this knowledge only for yourself, this knowledge where knowledge was power, this is something that is so seven centered—knowledge is power—because you had knowledge, and nobody had access to it. You could control the knowledge, so the priest could control the knowledge; all of these things.

You can't control knowledge anymore. You can actually go on the internet and get the information you need on how to build an atomic bomb. You can easily. There isn't any knowledge that you cannot get access to. It's out there for everyone. This is the age that we live in.

We're Moving Towards Another Dark Age

What we're entering into, what we're moving towards, is another dark age. It's an age where everything is going to be held back. From our perspective, we're preparing for a time in which we operate on our own Authority. But recognize that's always going to be a very small minority. The way in which the majority, the planet as a whole, is going to be influenced by the next cycle is very different.

Hoarding Will be a Part of the Next Cycle

The first thing that is going to happen is hoarding, holding everything for yourself. You're not going to have what we have. You're not going to have a bargain that says you don't have to worry if your refrigerator is empty, you can go downstairs, go out into the street, and buy what you need. You don't have to worry about those things, worry about protecting yourself in that way.

The Background Frequency of Individual Busyness

Well, that's not going to be the case. You're going to be dealing with a background frequency in which everybody is going to be busy looking after themselves. The era that we're moving into is a 20-34, 55-59. Any time you have a Cross that is a Definition, like we do now with the Cross of Planning, the Definition rules. The 40-37 has dominated our way of life for hundreds of years. The 20-34 is going to dominate our way of life for 400 years to come.

Now, the 20-34 is a kind of mindlessness. After all, if you look at Integration, the 20-34 really isn't something that is complete in and of itself. It's part of a four-Gate system—Integration—so, there are aspects that are missing. The 10 and the 57 is missing, which is the Behavior and Intuition. What you have is the 20-34 that says, "I am busy now; deeply self-absorbed. I am busy now."

So, we're going to enter into a background frequency of individual busyness, an individual busyness that isn't interested in the other. Integration doesn't care about the neighbor. It doesn't care about that person over there. It isn't going to work for that other person. It isn't going to reach out and give them a hand and pull them up.

With the 40-37, for whatever one may think about the Community and the Tribe, the Tribe looks after its weakest element. Every Tribe does. In the village I lived in for many years in Ibiza, there was a severely retarded boy. Everybody in the village looked after him and cared for him. They still do. He's now in his 40s. I still see him once in a while. He's still the same; he's very limited. But he's very secure and comfortable in the village life because the community has a way of looking after its own. This is the 40-37 at work.

When you get to the 20-34, it sees the handicapped or the retarded and just keeps going. You see the beggar on the street, and you go right by them. "I'm too busy now. Sorry; I'm busy. I can't stop for you." And we're going to have a planet like that.

When you look at the planet that we have today, you've got two billion people that survive on under $2 a day. Most of those two billion would not be able to survive at all if it weren't for all kinds of 40-37 organizations that provide for them in one way or another. They provide for their medical care, for food services, looking after them in one way or another that they're deeply dependent on.

The Nation-State Is Going to Break Down

Now, when we go into an age of the 20-34, everybody is going to be busy with their own trip. It means that nations are going to be busy with their own trip. And it means particularly that the nation-state is something that is going to break down.

The nation-state is very modern. We tend to think it's quite normal that we have countries. It is something we really think is normal. This is a very modern thing, the way it is constructed in the way in which we see it.

The modern nation-state came into existence during the Cross of Planning time. Before that, everything was rooted in tribalism, just tribes. Today tribal nations don't really exist. There are remnants of them. If you go into a country like Germany, it's not all Germans anymore. It's full of Turks and all kinds of different nationalities. It's the same thing with France. They're no longer tribes.

In Spain—I know this so well—there are all kinds of tensions with the State itself because it's made up of different tribes. And all of those tribes would like to have their own little country, the Basques, the Galicians, the Catalans, they all want to have their own country.

So, the modern nation-state that has been held together by this Cross of Planning is also going to fall apart. You take the example of the United States. I can see 100 years from now that there is no such thing other than perhaps in name because regionalism is slowly going to determine the individualism of each area. "We have to look after our own here, and we're not going to look after them."

It's like looking at the European community where you have farmers, for example, who have to agree to only grow certain things because farmers in other countries grow other things. And then everybody is ok because it's a community. The moment we enter into the next era, no country is going to do that. "We're going to grow what we need for our people. We're going to do what we need for our people."

Increasing Tariffs

Through the 40-37, we have had what is called free trade. Basically, the globalized economy and the opening up of a world in which there are no tariffs. Since the Second World War it's the thing that has made it possible, for example, Asia to be able to rise up. The fact is most people don't realize that in 1945, a country like Korea actually had more poverty than a country like Zimbabwe, which is really amazing when you think about it.

This whole transformation in the way in which the global economy has operated, the way in which all of these things have been opened up, you can see the pressure right now in the United States. The Canadians feel this because there is a huge pressure in the United States to buy American cars now. They've got this cash for clunkers. The thing that you hear in the background frequency is: Yeah, this is great, but it should only be for American cars.

You get this closing off. One of the natural things we're going to see over the next 18-20 years is more and more countries adding tariffs, bringing protectionism into the way in which they operate. In the end, this hurts everybody.

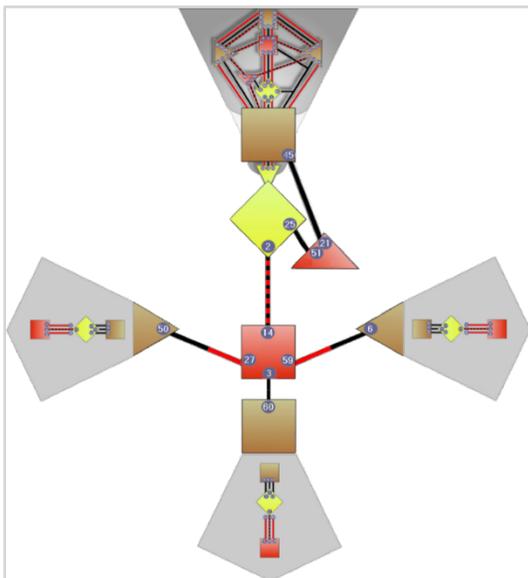

There is always the illusion when you're in that country that this is the best thing that you do for yourself. One of the things you're also going to see is an enormous transformation in the acceptance of immigrants anywhere.

A Revival of Regionalism

The moment that you move away from the Cross of Planning, the moment you move away from that sense of community that we can all be together, work together and be brothers, the first thing that happens when you back away from that is that you're only comfortable with your own. And not just simply your own, you're basically just comfortable with yourself, your family, protecting whatever is just yours. That's very, very limited.

You're going to have a backlash over the next 20-30 years where you're going to see this closing off of this kind of internationalism where everybody is going to be working together and everybody is going to help solve everybody else's problems. All of this is just shutting down.

For me I think it's clear that in North America, including Canada, you're going to get a revival of regionalism that really begins to dominate. For example, I can see certain Eastern Seaboard States having a different relationship than the Southern States. It's like looking at the Red and Blue States, this kind of thing where you're going to see a different kind of way in which interstate trade is organized. I don't think the Union can survive.

The Wa and Violence

The moment that you step away from the background frequency, you end up with the Wa. The moment you end up with the Wa, you end up with violence. The basic common denominator of human beings is to be vicious. This is what human beings are like. You put them together and you give them a sense that they are under threat, they will be violent.

The Need for the Cross of Planning

Frankly, I think that the American Southwest will probably be Hispanic. If you look at it in terms of the way in which the demographics operate, I think that you're going to have real breakdown in the way in which—you can't run such a huge nation without the Cross of Planning.

America was founded during the Cross of Planning. It was discovered, in that sense. Yeah, Columbus came in 1492, but when you think about from the beginning of the 17th century, this is how America was established. And its independence came at the very beginning of the Cross of Planning. It cannot survive without it.

No Commonality among Canadian Provinces

It won't go away overnight. This is my point that you need a hundred years in that movement to get into the next cycle. But I see that so clearly in Canada. There is nothing that binds a Western Canadian with an Eastern Canadian. That's all just an illusion. They have nothing in common with each other. Quebecers don't have anything in common with people in Ontario. And the Prairie People don't have anything in common with any of the others.

If you're in Alberta, which is our Texas, the Albertans don't want to have anything to do with the needs of the people in Ontario. People in Ontario want to go green, and the Albertans want to sell their oil. The tar sands, which is the largest reservoir of hydrocarbons on earth, is a pollution nightmare to get it all out.

People in Eastern Canada are going, "No, no, you can't do that." People in Alberta are saying, "Hey, this is our money. This is our land. We grow beef and we have oil." They don't have anything in common.

And the same thing in America. I know America so well. The difference between somebody from New York and Tallahassee—it goes on and on. It's very different. As a matter of fact, in Canada if you go to the West Coast of Canada if you're White you're a minority. It's all Orientals or Indians. I think in British Columbia only 28% of the population is White. It's another world.

I don't have any problem with that. It's just in terms of the way demographics operate, you get to see that it's an illusion that holds places like this together. And the same thing is true for America.

So, as we move forward, and particularly once we get beyond 2027 and the background frequency is different and the demands are different, we're not going to have this background frequency that says we should really be concerned about the other, because it's not going to be there. It's going to be: We have to be concerned about ourselves. That's what's going to be there. "And we're going to be busy with our stuff, and we can't afford to be busy with your stuff."

The End of Geopolitics

I think that this is the end of what we like to refer to as geopolitics where any nation is concerned about the way in which the globe operates, in which other nations operate, that somehow because you're over here you're concerned about what's going on in Afghanistan. All of that is coming to an end. You can already see that; you can already see people wondering why we're doing this.

Canada sends troops to Afghanistan and they want to pull them all out. "What are we doing this for"? And they don't care when they say something like that. They're only counting their own dead. They don't care about the women that are going to be enslaved the moment that there isn't—all of that stuff.

The Program Is Never Positive

The Program is a horror. This is the first thing. I wrote this comment on Facebook: The Program is never positive. The only thing that can be positive is what you can do in your life on your own Authority. There isn't anything else.

And the thing that's important for us is the thing I've been saying for years: You save one person at a time. You can't save the world—I have no messiah complex—you can't save the world or humanity. It isn't going to happen.

We All Are on a Fractal

Each and every one of us is on a fractal. There are those beings that you're going to have a connection with in this life. And it's those beings you have that connection with that you can make a difference in their life, one being at a time, because you can't do anything for anyone.

The seven centered being thought knowledge was power because it was held back. Knowledge is just information. And once you have the information, what you do with it is what you do with it. The only way you can free yourself from what the Program does is that you become a force that is beyond the Program.

Don't Give Up Your Authority

My thing is: Don't give up your Authority to anything. And when I say that it doesn't mean you don't stop at a red light. It isn't about that. It's about understanding that if you're operating according to your Strategy and Authority, it will tell you. Your Authority will decide what to accept and not accept in any situation. But it's your Authority because this is the only way you can live with this Program.

All those people today, I guarantee you if I could do the sales at pharmacies today, I'd find they have sold more aspirin and antacids today than another day, other than yesterday. We have this 64-47 Definition. We have all these people that have headaches. You've got all these people that are having mental pressure that are uncomfortable. For all these people that suffer from migraines, today and yesterday were particularly bad days.

What do they do? They just buy medication. This is what the Program does. The moment that you're operating correctly, you're aware of these things. I'm aware of that pressure, but it's not like an aspirin is going to help it. You can relieve the surface of something, but you just add something else.

The fact of the matter is that the Program is a deeply negative force that can only be overcome when you take full responsibility to be your own Authority. The moment that you are your own Authority, the moment you're controlling your decision making, it makes it practically impossible for anybody or anything else to have power over you. And nothing has a right to have power over you.

Succumbing to the Program's Authority

What we're going to witness in this plane that we're on is how people will succumb to that larger Authority that will drive them. There was a war between Iran and Iraq that took place in the 70s and 80s. It was a long one; it went on forever. Neither one of them could win that war.

The Iraqis under Saddam Hussein had placed mines along the border regions with Iran. There were some huge battles that were fought. As a matter of fact, some of those battles had more hardware than any battle in the Second World War. It was amazing stuff that went on. The Iranians had a problem. Their problem was that they didn't have enough equipment.

The Americans at that time were backing Saddam Hussein, interestingly enough. As a matter of fact, the guy that was the Secretary of Defense under Bush, Rumsfeld, was the guy that made the deal with Saddam Hussein to provide Hussein with modern American tanks, and whatever. The Iranians had nothing. They had all these old tanks. There was this whole battle that was being set up, and the Iranians couldn't afford to lose their tanks in the minefields.

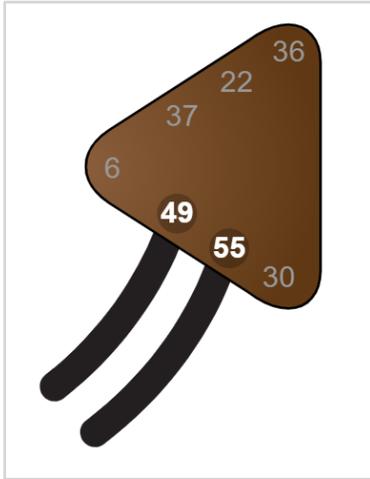

So, what did they do? They got 4,000 children—boys. Each of the boys was given two things: A key to wear around their neck—it was a key to paradise—and a Koran to hold in their hand. They were told to march into the fields. So, that's what these children did. They were told they would go to paradise as martyrs, that they would be welcomed. They had their key; they had their Koran. They cleared the minefield.

When I think about it, it's not that the children did this, because human beings are so easily manipulated, but their parents. It is unbelievable when you think about it. I don't mean to pick on them, because of course this is something that historically we've seen over and over again.

But it's just a way of grasping for a moment what it means when you give up all Authority, and particularly when you give up Authority to something that only the priests can claim to know what it's all about. Islamic fundamentalism, these people blowing themselves up and killing people and all this stuff, is the same thing. They're doing this believing they're going to some higher reward. They are manipulated to a point that they believe all of that.

The Rise in Secularism

This is the most dangerous time that we have in this shifting between what the background frequency of the Program has been and where we are going. The mutation that's taking place in the Solar Plexus Center is taking place in the 55th and 49th Gates. These are the two histidine codons.

The 49th Gate is the Gate that will sacrifice those children. It's the Gate of Abraham ready to sacrifice Isaac. This is what it's all about. The 49th Gate is a Gate where God rules, and the fear of God lives. This is under mutation. This mutation has been going on for a long time now. It's been going on since 1781, since the advent of the nine centered being.

So, since 1781, what we have seen is the rise of secularism, with the French Revolution, the whole scientific revolution so that science became the new godhead, where God couldn't save you and prayer couldn't save you, but the doctor could.

You still have this madness. The Christian Scientists where they have a child that's dying and they won't take the child to the secular healing, that they'll pray that the child will be healed by God, and the child dies, of course. And then they say it was God's will. Imagine doing that with your own children. I don't get this. From the moment I was given this knowledge it was clear to me its great value was to be able to protect children, not to put them in harm's way.

A Rise in Fundamentalism

Everything about this mutation that's taking place in the 49 is bringing about this incredible rise of fundamentalism, and not just the fundamentalism you most commonly hear about. It's not just about Islamic fundamentalism. It's about Christian fundamentalism, and Hindu fundamentalism, and Buddhist fundamentalism. Imagine Sri Lanka. Buddhism has this tradition of being so peaceful. Well, yeah, you didn't want to be a Tamil in Sri Lanka, I want to tell you. It's as ugly as ugly can get.

We have fundamentalism that is there—Jewish fundamentalism, it doesn't matter where it is—all of these fundamentalists. This is a deep, deep reaction to the fact that God is not the point. God was a seven centered phenomenon. It has absolutely nothing to do with us. There is no such thing. So, you have this enormous control mechanism that is deeply challenged.

You get to see it so clearly because all these fundamentalists don't want to live in the present or the future. Do you notice that? They all want to go back to the past. They all want to live in some kind of bizarre museum of past life. It's like Bin Laden. This guy was a 12th century warrior. It has nothing to do with the present or the future.

No matter where you look in fundamentalism, all these fundamentalists want to go back to the way things used to be where women were slaves, where they could rule everything and all things. It's like watching the Iranian theocracy at work. It's unbelievable.

In the early 90s, I did a lot of teaching in Germany and I had many Persian women who at that time were being educated in Germany and were students of mine, who I trained as analysts and still have contact with, who still do Human Design in places like Tehran. What is going on there is horrendous. It's horrendous what they've had to live with over the last decade or so. It's really extraordinary. This is a horrible world to have to live in.

Standing Up to Homogenized Authority

The only thing that saves us is the ability to stand up to homogenized Authority, those homogenized Authorities that are as unoriginal as these beings who keep on quoting people. They keep on quoting the same things. They keep on quoting them over and over again. They strip you of any possibility to be able to rise up and be yourself. This is what the Program does. The Program is in no way interested in human beings standing up and being unique. It's not interested in uniqueness. It's not about uniqueness.

If we're going to be able to survive in the future, the integrity of what it is to be us, if we're going to flourish and flourish intellectually—and we can—then we have to do that one by one. We're not going to do that in groups. We're not going to do that in communities. We're going to do that one by one. There is no other way.

This is the whole thing. It is the great joke that I learned on my very first day when I landed in Ibiza and I met this guy who introduced himself as God—Frank, sweet Frank; an American. We played around with that. He said to me, “When I die, I take you all with me. I wake up in the morning and I make all this up.”

Being Correct Within Our Form

We're here alone inside of these things. This is what matters. What matters is whether we can be correct here in these forms. There is nothing else. And if we're correct in these forms, if we can learn to love this process of being so densely in this Maia, because it is a dense environment to be a part of, then we can be open to those possibilities of meeting the other. And in meeting the other, give them the same possibility, that possibility of discovering their own inner truth, being able to discover their own potential, uniqueness, beauty, and purpose.

Not a purpose that is manufactured by some propaganda machine. It's like looking at the hopes and dreams that people place on politicians. It's a joke. It's all not-self. I'm sure Obama is a nice guy, but it's still a joke. He's as not-self as the next one. He's caught in the Program. He has a headache today. It's just the way that it works. He's not operating out of his own Authority.

There is no uniqueness in that, there is simply the homogenized patterns of the way in which things always worked. And they're going to deal with the problems in the same homogenized way, all of those not-self beings trying to figure out something unoriginal. It is the way it is.

Nothing Outside of Ourselves Is Going to Save Us

We cannot count on some exterior force to be able to save us, whether it is God or the politician, whatever it is. It isn't going to save us. We're not here to be saved. It's one being at a time waking up. And one being at a time waking up in their own process. It takes great courage to do that. It takes great courage to be alone.

The illusion is that there is always somebody else for you, somebody else that will do it and will help. But this is all the remnants of the Program, the background frequency that has been giving us this message for hundreds of years that's wired into us from the moment we came into the world.

Helping One Person at a Time

Well, the Program changes, and this is coming to an end. And it's not about being depressed by any of this by the way, because it isn't. The privilege of this knowledge is to be aware that these things are taking place, to understand it.

If you pay attention to what the Program is doing every day, there is always going to be a moment where you can help somebody. There is always going to be that moment where you see somebody today that's all nervous, anxious, and running around like crazy. You can just put your hand on them and say, "You're really supposed to be doing all of this? You really think this is going to work for you? Because it's just the Program. It's not you."

Understanding what the Program is doing gives you an insight into the mindlessness of the world around you. And we're all surrounded by those beings that are trapped in that, that have no way out. It's only by being aware of that that you can bring that to them, one being at a time.

There is always that person in your life that you can have that impact, that you can make that difference for them. Beyond that, there isn't anything. We're not about homogenization. We're about uniqueness, each being with its potential and possibility.

When I look at my children, I know that they're going to live in that age, and I know that they're going to be fine. They know how to operate as themselves. They know not to be afraid when they have to make a decision. They know that they can trust, in that sense. They know that they are their own best Authority. So, they're always going to be protected.

Being Prepared for the Future

The future isn't dark; it's different. It's another age. It's another way. And it's about being equipped. This knowledge came into the world to provide human beings with the mechanics to survive in that age, to understand and recognize what it's going to be.

Though there will be a world that will suffer, and there will be, there always has been and it does not change, does not mean that everyone has to fall in that suffering when the time comes. The beauty of what we have is to be prepared, to know how to exist on this plane, in this Maia, in these forms, in order to transcend this life.
